(Aus dem Lateran, dessen Fenster jetzt in vollem Frührot strahlen, hört man die Orgel beginnen; bei ihrem Klange legt sich augenblicklich das Toben des Volkes; die ganze Straße bis zum Lateran ist mit Knieenden bedeckt.)
(Daylight begins to illuminate the church of St. John. The Organ is heard from within the church, the people kneel in silence.)
(Spunta l'aurora. Il Laterano splende irradiato dai caldi raggi del mattino. S'ode l'organo, il popolo si commove e si prostra, l'intera piazza è coperta da gente inginocchiata.)

(The portals of the church are thrown open and discover in the interior a crowd of Priests and Monks of all orders. Rienzi appears accompanied by Raimondo, he is completely clad in armour, his head uncovered. At his appearance the people rise and receive him with great enthusiasm.)

(Le porte del Laterano si schiudono violentemente. La chiesa è piena di Preti e di Monache d'ogni ordine. Rienzi appare vestito in armatura completa e col capo scoperto. Al suo lato stanno Raimondo e i principali del popolo in atto festoso. All'apparire di Rienzi il popolo in salutazione ed immenso entusiasmo.)

(Der Vorhang geht auf. — Die Scene stellt den großen Platz des alten Forums mit Ruinen von Säulen und Statuen dar. — Im Beginn der Scene hört man von ferne und in unregelmäßigen Pausen die große Capitolsglocke läuten. Wild aufgeregte Volkshaufen erfüllen die Scene.)

(A Square in Rome, around are lying ruined columns and broken capitals. Before the rising of the curtain Bells are heard ringing. At the rising the scene is crowded with people.)

(Gran piazza in Roma. Colonne spezzate e capitelli precipitati. Prima che sialzi la tela si ode suonare a stormo.)

NB. Die Musik auf dem Theater muß hier in ziemlicher Entfernung von der Scene aufgestellt sein; dennoch müssen die einzelnen Eintritte sehr stark geblasen werden, damit sie die Wirkung machen, als ob durch einzelne Windstöße der Schlachtlärm hergetragen würde; man muß deshalb auch die jedesmaligen Eintritte mit Sturmwind begleiten.

NB. The music on the stage must be placed far away from the scene; now and then the entrances of the instruments must be given out strongly, in order to give the impression of being carried by gusts of wind. Each entrance therefore should be accompanied by the sound of blowing wind.

NB. La musica sul palcoscenico deve essere posta ad una certa lontananza dalla scena. Le singole entrate devono essere accentuate con forza per dare l'impressione che colpi di vento portino il rumore della battaglia. Perciò si deve accompagnare ogni entrata con colpi di vento impetuoso.

Behind the scene. Hinter der Scene. Dietro la scena.

(Friedensboten mit Lorbeerzweigen treten auf und geleiten einen antiken Triumphwagen Rienzi entgegen. Rienzi steigt vom Pferd und betritt den Triumphwagen, nachdem ihm von den Friedensboten der Helm abgenommen und dafür ein Lorbeerkranz auf das Haupt gesetzt worden ist. Irene, welche bei Adriano's Abgang erblassend in die Arme der Frauen gesunken war, wird von diesen zu Rienzi geleitet, welcher sie zu sich auf den Wagen heraufzieht, wo sie sich matt an ihres Bruders Schultern anlehnend an seiner Seite stehen bleibt Trophäen, bestehend aus Rüstungen und Feldzeigen der Nobili werden im Triumph vor Rienzi vorüber getragen, die Bewaffneten ordnen sich zum Zuge, dem sich endlich auch Rienzi im Triumphwagen anschließt.)
(During the following Chorus the messengers of peace arrive bringing a triumphal Car. Rienzi descends from his horse and steps into the car. The messengers crown him with a laurel wreath. Irene, broken-hearted at the departure of Adriano, is led by the women to Rienzi who takes her by his side. Troops with war trophies march past.)
(Durante questo Coro alcuni Messi di pace entrano scortando un carro trionfale. Rienzi scende da cavallo e sale sur carro. I Messi gli tolgono dal capo l'elmo e lo incoronano d'alloro. Irene che era caduta nelle braccia delle donne alla partenza di Adriano, è accompagnata verso Rienzi; il quale la prende sul carro. Irene vi rimane immobile appoggiata alle spalle del fratello in affranto atteggiamento. Sfilano davanti a Rienzi trofei guerreschi e d armati in corteo trionfale.)

Szenische Bemerkung. Von Adrianos Auftritt an wird es immer finsterer, so daß die Szene in völliger Nacht endet; bald wachsendes, bald abnehmendes, im Ganzen aber immer näher kommendes Volksgetümmel wird von außen her vernommen; der grelle Schein von Feuerbränden erhellt blitzartig das Dunkel der Szene durch die Fenster, deren Scheiben durch Steinwürfe zerschlagen werden. Diese Steigerung des Aufruhrs muß jedoch erst gegen das Ende der Szene eintreten.

Stage direction: After Adriano's entering the scene turns constantly darker until utter darkness is attained; growing and again subsiding, but constantly approaching riot of the people is heard; the sharp light of firesticks flashes through the windows, the panes of which are being broken by thrown stones. The uproar must be kept growing right on to the end of the scene.

Disposizione per la scena: Dall'entrata di Rienzi si fa sempre più buio, talchè la scena finisce a notte completa. Si ode avvicinarsi con vicenda di gridi tumulto di popolo. Lo splendore di incendi illumina a momenti la scena a traverso le finestre, che saranno colpite da sassate. Questo crescendo di tumulto deve però aver luogo solamente verso la fine della scena.
